

Also, a little set of comparisons, showing first the White House version and then my version of a short stretch of talk. These are ones where I can confidently say it doesn't go like that, it goes like this. There are others where all I can say is it doesn't go like that, but I can't give a sensible version of what it does go like.

For example, where the White House transcript has Nixon saying "I can see their doing it earlier. I can see the pressures," I hear him saying "I c'd see doing it (.) earlier (doing bihgan ↓gloves) okay. ↓ I c'd see the press-ures".

For example, where the White House transcript has Nixon saying "I thought Mitchell went." [to the Grand Jury], I hear him saying "('N that w'z Febyuary.)" I suppose if it turned out that such events took place in February it would give some credence to my hearing.

For example (I love this one), the White House transcript has Nixon saying, about such things as laundering money, "Maybe it takes a gang to do that." I hear him saying "Maybe we can't (ski lift)." Hey ho.
